

BUSINESS FOR PEACE SPOTLIGHT SERIES ON DECENT WORK

26-28 MAY 2021

BUSINESS FOR PEACE
FOUNDATION

A recap of keynote presentations, debates & roundtable discussions featuring global and regional business leaders and experts.

The Spotlight Series offered insight and actionable ideas as to how businesses can adopt a multi-stakeholder approach to create better systems for decent work, safeguard employees' rights and safety, build more resilient supply chains, and increase economic and social participation of youths and the most vulnerable in society.

BUSINESS FOR PEACE

Business for Peace Foundation is an international foundation based in Oslo that aims to support, inspire, and recognise global business leaders who are positively changing the face of business. Founded in 2007, the Foundation was established with the vision that all business leaders see improving society as their higher purpose. At the centre of the Foundation's efforts is the annual Oslo Business for Peace Award.

Each year, recipients are selected by an independent committee of Nobel Prize Laureates in Peace and Economics in closed-door sessions. The Award is conferred to exceptional individuals who exemplify the Foundation's concept of being businessworthy: ethically and responsibly creating economic value that also creates value for society.

2021 SPOTLIGHT SERIES

Each year, Business for Peace hosts a Summit in Oslo, Norway. The Summit includes keynote presentations, debates, and roundtable discussions featuring business leaders and experts from a breadth of fields. The event serves to accelerate the Foundation's vision to recognise, inspire and accelerate businessworthy leadership.

In 2021, due to the coronavirus pandemic, the annual Summit was not able to take place as usual. However, important, cross-sector conversations and action still needed to occur, perhaps more than ever before. In lieu of a physical Summit in 2021, the Foundation hosted a three-day, online Spotlight Series focusing on Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 8: Decent Work and Inclusive Economic Growth.

In the 2021 Business for Peace Spotlight Series, we examined our shared objective to rebuild better systems of work, looked at ways to improve visibility for marginalised groups and explored how to turn challenges into opportunities with the SDGs as a roadmap.

We heard from expert panelists and global leaders whose experience at local, national, regional and international levels all help guide the way forward.

It is clear that a renewed commitment to collaboration, centered around the 2030 Agenda, is needed to tackle challenges that are too great for any of us to solve alone. Our decisions on economic recovery, climate change, and international trade and cooperation will shape decent work and economic growth for generations to come.

It is in this spirit we organised the 2021 Business for Peace Spotlight Series. By shining a light on these crucial issues, we called on the global business community to take action.

“The pandemic has exposed the inequalities in our societies. Covid-19 has affected people with poor health and poor income the worst. We need to build back better and we need more equal and greener societies.”

JOSEPH E. STIGLITZ, NOBEL-PRIZE WINNING ECONOMIST

“We have to build up trust in good times to make sure we can work together when things go bad. We are in the process of building back better, but have a long way to go. The SDGs must play a leading role in navigating us out of the crisis.”

FIONA REYNOLDS, PRINCIPLES FOR RESPONSIBLE INVESTMENT (PRI)

“If you want to create a movement, people have to be connected to it. We are all connected to modern day slavery because we are consumers. We have to connect the dots between consumers and slavery footprints.”

JUSTIN DILLON, FOUNDER, FRDM

“All municipalities in Norway, by law, has a youth council that needs to be consulted with regarding all issues on youth. But a lot of the youth that are involved are from privileged backgrounds we need to get youth engaged from all backgrounds.”

KAMZY GUNARATNAM, DEPUTY MAYOR OF OSLO, OSLO MUNICIPALITY

“To rebuild from Covid-19 means rebuilding trust. A new social contract to address inequalities that delivers adequate social protection & decent job opportunities. Social dialogue is key to making it a reality.”

GUY RYDER, DIRECTOR GENERAL, INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION

“[The Spotlight Series was a] great opportunity to better understand the challenges migrants, refugees, IDPs, and people with disabilities face to get into the labour market.”

KNUT ANDERSEN, GLOBAL LIVELIHOODS MANAGER, NORWEGIAN REFUGEE COUNCIL

2021 SPOTLIGHT PROGRAMME

The three-day Spotlight Series on UN SDG8 examined ways to rebuild better systems of work, looked at ways to improve visibility for marginalised groups and explored how to turn challenges into opportunities with the SDGs as a roadmap.

26 MAY

The first day of the Spotlight Series looked at how businesses can adopt a multi-stakeholder approach to create better systems for decent work, safeguard employees' rights and safety, and build more resilient supply chains.

Sessions included:

- Rethinking Systems of Decent Work
- Stakeholder Capitalism in the Post-Pandemic World: Conversation with Joseph Stiglitz
- Building Resilient Supply Chains

27 MAY

The second day we explored how to tackle social and economic challenges arising from the current pandemic to generating innovative solutions and re-building resilient, inclusive and sustainable economies.

Sessions included:

- Inspiring Youth Inclusion and Participation
- The Hidden Workforce
- Role of Governments and Businesses in Building Back Better

28 MAY

On the final day, we learned more about financial inclusion, sustainable investing, blended finance and how it all relates to UN SDG8.

Sessions included:

- Ensuring Financial Services for All: Leading Financial Inclusion with Dr. James Mwangi
- Sustainable Investing: The SDG Impact Standards in Focus
- Scaling Sustainable Finance and Economic Growth with Keynote Address by Amina Mohammed
